

A Video Game for the Julie Andrews in All of Us

Think saying supercalifragilisticexpialidocious is fun? Try singing it — in key — along with the irrepressible Mary Poppins! That's the challenge that awaits you and your kids in Disney Sing It: Family Hits. When you're done warbling with Mary, join in on 29 other classics from Cinderella, The Lion King, Aladdin, and more. Nintendo Wii and PS3. 1 to 8 players. Ages 8 and up. Disney Interactive Studios, $40 — Ellen Harter Wall

This Game Adds Up to Fun

In Sumoku, one player rolls a die, then all players take turns arranging numbered tiles, crossword-style, so each row or column adds up to a multiple of the number rolled. Scores are tallied based on the number combinations played on each person's turn, with the game continuing until no tiles remain. Our tester moms especially loved how all 97 pieces stow away in the easy-to-tote, cone-shaped sack. Directions for variations, such as speed and team play, are included. 1 to 8 players. Ages 9 and up. Blue Orange, $15 — Amy Kaldor-Bull
